New world, new ideas
Moving for a life ahead

The TGV, or high-speed train, serves all of the main towns in the region. The region benefits from a first-class network of motorway links going in every direction.

Regular rail (TGV) links Nantes-Paris every half hour, Nantes-Brussels with the Thalys, Nantes-London with the Eurostar. Nantes airport has direct links with Paris-Charles de Gaulle and other French and European cities - London, Milan, Barcelona, Amsterdam and Geneva. The Nantes Saint-Nazaire port is the fourth largest in France and combines the sea, the estuary, road, rail and air to form a multi-faceted transport centre of prime importance.

The artistic talent of the region is reflected in the original shows and events it organises, which attract huge crowds and are exported to the five corners of the globe.

The world’s largest liners are built in Saint-Nazaire, where the whole network is working on developing environmentally friendly vessels as part of the Sustainable Ship Design project.

The Arronax cyclotron is a unique piece of technical equipment and a formidable tool in the fight against cancer.

Végépolys, in Angers, is the world reference in innovation in the field of specialised plants.

The Pays de la Loire counts more than 5,000 companies with export departments, with a genuine desire and ability for international cooperation. Economically speaking, we can cite famous examples such as Airbus, Bénéteau, Manitou and Fleury Michon. In the entertainment world, the region features internationally successful street theatre companies such as Royal de Luxe as well as the world renowned Folles Journées festival.

G20 Research Group

In the rapidly globalizing world of the 21st century, the Group of Twenty systemically significant countries, created at the level of finance ministers and central bank governors in 1999 and elevated to the leaders’ level in 2008, seeks to be the premier permanent centre of international economic cooperation. Its members, consisting of the Group of Eight, emerging countries and the European Union, work to provide financial stability, sustainable growth and openness that benefit all.

The G20 Research Group is a global network of scholars, students and professionals in the academic, research, business, non-governmental and other communities who follow the work of the G20 leaders, finance ministers and central bank governors. It is directed from the Munk School of Global Affairs at Trinity College in the University of Toronto, also the home of the G8 Research Group.

Our mission is to serve as the world’s leading independent source of information and analysis on the G20. As scholars, we accurately describe, parsimoniously explain and reflectively interpret what the G20 and its members do, and, on this basis, responsibly predict what they will do. As teachers and public educators, we present to the global community and G20 governments the results of our research as well as others’ research, ways to learn about the G20 and information about the G20. As citizens, we foster transparency and accountability in G20 governance, and the connection between civil society and G20 governors. And as professionals, we offer policy advice about G20 governance, but do not engage in advocacy for or about the G20 or the issues it might address.

The G20 Information Centre

How do we feed a growing world population?

- Farm new land
- Get more from existing farmland

The world needs more food. By 2050, there will be another 2 billion people on our planet. How do we provide enough high-quality food and preserve our environment? At Syngenta, we believe the answer lies in the boundless potential of plants. We develop new, higher yielding seeds and better ways to protect crops from insects, weeds and disease. So farmers can get more from existing farmland and take less new land into cultivation. It’s just one way in which we’re helping growers around the world to meet the challenge of the future: to grow more from less. To find out more, please visit us at www.growmorefromless.com
